Michael Falzon (politician) Michael Falzon (born February 11, 1951) was a longtime member of the Newfoundland and Labrador House of Assembly. He represented the district of Harbour Main from 1993 to 2002 as a member of the Liberal Party, and then as an Independent Liberal until 2006, and also served as an alderman of St. John's in the City of St. John's for several years. Personal life Born February 11, 1951, Falzon was raised on the Outer Harbour and attended St. Clare's College in Mount Pearl. He later earned a Bachelor of Arts Degree in History and Political Science at Memorial University of Newfoundland. He married his wife, Margaret, on July 6, 1972. They have two sons, Anthony and Joseph, both of whom were born in St. John's. Political career He was first elected in 1993, and was re-elected in 1997 and 2000. He was first elected as a member of the Liberal Party and served in the Cabinet under Danny Williams as Minister of Natural Resources and Minister of Transportation and Works. In that role he introduced legislation which resulted in the creation of The Avalon Road Wreckage and Investigation Board (ARRWIB), and the subsequent establishment of The Canada Newfoundland and Labrador Marine Investigation Board, which is responsible for investigating marine disasters. He also took responsibility for bringing a National Transportation Safety Board investigation to St. John's after the crash of Eastern Air Lines Flight 980. He was also the Liberal Party's candidate in the St. John's East by-election in 2002. After Williams was elected as Premier, he then joined the newly formed Independent Liberal Party. He was leader of the newly formed third party, and despite still being an elected representative, chose to run in the 2002 provincial election. During the campaign, which included a visit to Brazil for a trade delegation, he made a controversial comment that "bombing homosexuals will help with AIDS". Falzon was the candidate for the party in St. John's East, but lost to Progressive Conservative Larry Pennell in the general election.
